Foreword

The year book for 1938 has been built to portray Jefferson as it is today. . . . The staff has worked to secure not the formal but the natural—the informal—the human side of Jefferson. Our photographers have been notified to portray the architectural impressiveness of the buildings and the informal groups of students—as we saw them and as we shall hope to recall them.

If, in years to come, this collection of photographs stimulates anything like an awakening of those priceless thoughts or memories, the editors will feel most sincerely that their duty has been accomplished.

MARGUERITE SHELMADINE

We, the classes of January and June 1938, wish to dedicate this, our year book, to Miss Marguerite Shelmadine, our vice-principal.

Her unfailing interest in our endeavors and her helpful guidance will long be remembered.

It is with deep regret that we close a happy chapter filled with pleasant memories of our school days at Jefferson.

contains a story of the school year in four chapters: opening and faculty, seniors, activities, and athletics

David W. Densmore

To the Classes of 1938:

This opportunity you afford me to insert a message in your Annual is deeply appreciated. It shall always be a source of satisfaction to me to look back over the pleasant memories of our sojourn here together. As you go forth to fill your particular places in the world, it is my earnest hope that you will ever hold high those standards of good citizenship which have been exemplified in your numerous class activities.

The challenge that life presents to you is one that will call for all the strength of character, balance of judgment, tolerance, and willingness to adapt to conditions that you can muster. If you are determined to be satisfied with nothing short of your best efforts, I am confident that a successful adjustment to a truly abundant life will be yours.

January Class Advisers

We, the graduating class of January, 1938, take this opportunity to thank our advertisers for their patience and understanding.

The wise but friendly advice of Mrs. Zwickel has made our association with her very pleasant, and the encouragement and kindness of Mr. Saxe we shall remember.

We leave our advisers and our school with happy memories and deep regret.

January Standard Bearers

To Ann Donofrio and Gino Sturiale, who have long been two of our leading students, we are glad to say that their efforts in upholding the standards of Jefferson have been appreciated by their colleagues. Their participation in school activities has been recognized as well as their scholastic endurance.

June Class Advisers

We, the graduating class of June, 1938, wish to thank our advisers for their patient guidance and genuine interest in our endeavors. Their genial natures and willing assistance have made our last days in Jefferson pleasant ones.

Through contact with Miss McCarty we have enriched and lightened our personalities, while the good humor and kind advice of Mr. Saxe will long be remembered.

It is with reluctance that we leave our advisers and our school where we have spent so many happy days.

Miss Loretta McCarty

Mr. Walter Saxe

June Standard Bearers

We take this opportunity to acknowledge the leadership and scholastic ability of our standard bearer, Anthony White, and of our custodian of the flag, Sylvia Catalano. Throughout their entire high school careers they have shown untiring effort to better Jefferson for those who will fill their places in times to come.

Senior Snaps

1. Ada and Tuttle split a John. 2. Our mascot with perfect attendance. 3. Editors enjoy ice cream while Quercia looks on. 4. Rose throws a party. 5. Hammersla, the well-dressed carpenter. 6. Tuttle and Mitrano setting the Journal. 7. Simmons finds Hammersla a good leaning post. 8. Barbara and Al, officers of January class. 9. Viola, Anna, and Geraldine setting a good example. 10. Ping Pong is just a song to "Otts." 11. Archie McLeod and Company. 12. Al, Pat, and Jiggs find Frank's head quite flat. 13. Uncle Remus: I came; I saw; so what?
